

Cleveland Clinic

Faculty Position in Quantitative Health Sciences

The Cleveland Clinic is seeking an additional faculty member to join its multidisciplinary group in Quantitative Health Sciences. The current group has 19 faculty and over 90 total members and is expected to grow substantially over the next several years. Areas of research application include biostatistics, clinical trials, statistical genetics and bioinformatics, statistical computing, predictive modeling, quality of life assessment, and cost-effectiveness analysis.

Successful candidates must have excellent written and verbal skills with the ability and desire to conduct both collaborative and methodologic research. A doctoral degree with expertise in biostatistics or a related discipline, experience working with large databases, training in methods of analysis of health care status questionnaires (e.g. item-response theory, latent-class analysis, classical test theory, factor analysis), ability and desire to collaborate, strong desire to publish journal articles is required. Expectations are the publication of collaborative papers utilizing Cleveland Clinic Knowledge Program data and the development and publication of new methods of measuring/analyzing health status data. The level of appointment will commensurate with experience of the candidate and may be at the full, associate, or assistant level. This is a 'hard money' position with no explicit requirements to obtain salary support. Masters level statistician support will be provided. Data manipulation and questionnaire programming support will also be provided. Minimal formal teaching is expected.

The metropolitan and suburban areas of Cleveland comprise a population of over 3 million, rich in cultural diversity. The city itself is centrally located to several other large cities yet enjoys a low cost of living index. The Cleveland Clinic is a top-ranked hospital overall and in all specialties and has been the leading heart care center for 17 years.

Interested candidates should e-mail curriculum vitae, the names of at least three references, and a letter summarizing experience and research interests to ghsjobsearch@ccf.org.
